AFGHAN SERIALS COLLECTION: PARTISAN PUBLICATIONS FROM THE WAHDAT LIBRARY

Afghan Serials Collection: Partisan Publications from the Wahdat Library showcases unique press materials from a key era that shaped not only Afghanistan and the Middle East, but the entire world. Featuring content not assembled elsewhere, the collection of newspapers and journals, from 1968-2001, chronicle the rich and dynamic Afghan press. These titles make up a collection of essential resources for scholars and area experts.

Documenting the breadth of Afghanistan's political epochs, the collection covers the use of the press by many groups that sought to shape Afghanistan's social and intellectual landscape. Various ideologies are represented in these publications, published by opposing factions from the Taliban to anti-Taliban groups, to anti-Soviet jihadi and mujaheddin groups to the People's Democratic Party of Afghanistan.

This collection is a major contribution to the preservation of the history of the region and is comprised of the careful selection of more than 2,500 individual issues of 46 newspapers and journals published in Persian, Pushto, Arabic, Urdu, and English from the early 1970s to the early 2000s – a critical period for the history of Afghanistan.

The Wahdat Library, founded by Afghan scholar and journalist Ahmad Shah Wahdat and collected over a nearly 30-year period, is the most comprehensive private collection of rare newspapers and journals from Afghanistan. Read more: eastview.com/da-asc

IRANIAN STRATEGIC STUDIES

Gain unique insight into the Middle East with the Iranian Strategic Studies (UDB-CMESS) collection. This journal and e-book collection is from the Center for Scientific Research and Middle East Strategic Studies (CMESS), a think tank in Iran with focused studies and research on the various aspects of the Middle East.

The six journals and over 30 e-books found in the Iranian Strategic Studies collection provides Western academics and area experts with an inside look into the concepts and language that predominate high-level policy and academic discourse in Iran. The publications are in Arabic, Persian, and English. This easy-to-use online database offers full-text searching and comprehensive tables of contents, with articles viewable in full-image PDF. Content in the database starts from 1991 and will continuously grow as forthcoming issues are added.

Founded in 1988 with branches in both Tehran and Beirut, CMESS is a major player within Iran's nascent yet thriving political science industry. They host conferences and roundtables with international politicians, think tanks, and universities, and their main audience comprises high-level academic and policy experts in Iran. Read more: eastview.com/udb-cmess

INDEX TO HEBREW PERIODICALS

Produced by the University of Haifa Library in Israel, the Index to Hebrew Periodicals is a bibliographic indexing project covering articles from Hebrew periodicals, collections, and some monographs. IHP delivers content from 1977 in Hebrew, English, and other languages. Offered on the Index to Hebrew Periodicals platform, the collection includes:

The Index to Hebrew Periodicals (IHP) – Abstracts of major Hebrew journals from 1977 to date with the exception of weeklies and newsletters. IHP covers a variety of subjects with an emphasis on Judaica, literature, education, arts, law, and current Israeli affairs (politics and society).

The Bar-Ilan Indexing Project – Carried out by the Indexing Unit of the Wurzweiler Central Library, it consists of two parallel projects: 1) an index to articles in the literary supplements of the daily Hebrew press (1985–). Includes the supplements of Ha'aretz, Yediot Aharonot, Ma'ariv, Ha'tsofeh, Yated Ne'eman, Ha'modia, Al-Hamishmar, Davar and Hadashot (the latter three until they ceased publication); and 2) indexes to other Hebrew periodicals: Orlogin (1950–1957), Melila (1944–1956), Bar-Ilan (1965–1989) and Molad (1948–1986).

The Eretz Israel Database (EID) – A project of the University of Haifa Library in cooperation with the library of Yad Yitshak Ben Zvi, EID material relates to the history, geography, and archaeology of the land of Israel.

The Tel-Hai Index to Hebrew Newspapers (THIHN) – A project of Tel-Hai College Library in Upper Galilee where indexing was produced and then input by the University of Haifa. Particular emphasis given to longer, analytical articles on social, economic, and political topics (including "op-ed" articles) as well as significant reviews of books, exhibitions, theater, and other cultural events.

The Index to Hebrew Periodicals Thesaurus – All four component files share the same common thesaurus of indexing terms. The Index to Hebrew Periodicals thesaurus is the largest and most comprehensive thesaurus of Hebrew indexing terms. It contains about 230,000 subject entries. Subjects are interrelated using the standard broad/narrow/related term relationships, as well as scope notes and synonyms. The thesaurus terms are written in standard "brief" Hebrew orthographic form (ketiv haser).

EAST VIEW ARCHIVE EDITIONS™

East View Archive Editions (formerly Cambridge Archive Editions) is an extensive portfolio of primary source document collections covering a variety of historical events spanning the 18th-20th centuries. First established in 1979 in the United Kingdom, Archive Editions began by publishing its collections in multi-volume print form and later, through a collaboration between East View and Cambridge University Press, as e-book collections.

All of the nearly 1,000 print volumes and accompanying maps are available as online editions via the East View E-book Platform, and more information and the title list may be found at eastview.com/ae-near-middle-east. Titles are also available in print at eastviewpress.com/archive-editions

The newest Archive Editions collections are presented on the East View Archive Editions platform, where documents are richly tagged and dynamically discoverable:

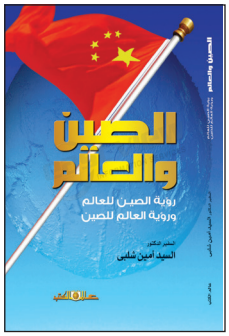
EGYPT AND THE RISE OF NATIONALISM: 1840–1927

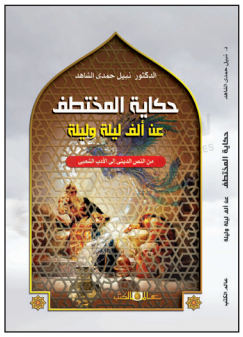
Presents original documentary sources chronicling the development of Egyptian nationalist sensibility during the periods of Ottoman, French, and British rule: from first protests, to sporadic violence, to lobbying, to organized political parties and, ultimately, to Egyptian independence. Read more: eastview.com/ae-egypt-rise-of-nationalism

TRIBES OF THE NORTH-WEST FRONTIER: BRITISH RECORDS, 1836–1960

A database presenting the history of British engagements in the tribal lands of Pakistan and Afghanistan. The collection presents a century of British perspective on ethnic, political, and military issues in territories then administered by the British that later slipped out of British control. Read more: eastview.com/ae-tribes-north-west-frontier

ALAM AL-KOTOB DIGITAL LIBRARY





Alam Al-Kotob (World of Books), a leading publishing house based in Cairo, Egypt. Since its establishment in 1965, Alam Al-Kotob has become a cornerstone of Arabic academic publishing, offering a diverse catalog across many disciplines. The publisher's strong collaborations with respected scholars, universities, and institutions ensure the highest academic standards in every title it produces.

The Alam Al-Kotob Digital Library is an essential resource for scholars engaged in Arabic intellectual studies. It provides access to more than 500 scholarly Arabic titles published from the late 1960s to today, offering valuable insights into linguistics, media, law, religion, and the social sciences – all grounded in the Arab intellectual tradition.

Through East View, these resources are now more accessible than ever, opening new possibilities for comparative research, linguistic and cultural analysis, and cross-disciplinary study that were previously difficult to pursue.

Discover how the Alam Al-Kotob Digital Library can expand your institution's Arabic holdings and support transformative research across the humanities and social sciences.

KOTOBARABIA

Kotobarabia, a pioneer creator of Arabic e-content and distributor specializing in the Arabic language, offers an online solution to increasing and diversifying any institution's offerings from the Middle East. Currently, East View offers two e-book collections from Kotobarabia: Arab Leaders, Historians and Philosophers Collection and Modern Arab Renaissance Collection. Both are available exclusively on East View's Universal Database E-book platform, hosted in the United States.

ARAB LEADERS, HISTORIANS AND PHILOSOPHERS COLLECTION

With approximately 5,000 titles, this collection includes never before seen works of many great Arab scientists and teachers. Access contributions covering a millennium of canonical Arab thought from nearly 1,000 important, highly valued Arab thinkers, philosophers, historians, politicians, and theologians. These works formed the crucible for Arab culture, religion, philosophy, and political thought today.

Presented on the East View E-Book Platform, each e-book found in the collection is a faithful rendition of the physical title, all scanned from original editions. The books are arranged thematically and include accompanying MARC records.

About East View

Since 1989, East View Information Services has been providing high quality information products and services in native and translated world languages to a wide variety of academic, commercial and government customers throughout the world.

Starting with print resources from Turkey, Iran, and Egypt, we have grown our online content from around the region. A few significant developments include:

- In 2014 Cambridge University Press and East View partnered to digitize the rich historical content found in the entire Cambridge Archive Editions collection.
- In 2016 East View partnered with Stanford University Libraries and the Hoover Institution Library & Archives to digitize over 25 million pages of rare newspapers from key regions of the globe. This effort led to the establishment of East View Global Press Archive®. The Digital Archive collections for Al-Ahram, Cumhuriyet, and Baghdad Observer are a part of this initiative.
- In 2019 East View formed an Alliance with the Center for Research Libraries (CRL) to digitize and make available 4.5 million pages of international newspaper content. This initiative, part of the East View Global Press Archive program, will deliver 1.5 million pages of content for all CRL member institutions and participating institutions. An additional 3 million pages will be available as Open Access, including the Middle Eastern and North African Newspapers collection.
- In 2021 Cambridge Archive Editions imprint, formerly published by Cambridge University Press, became a part of East View Information Services. The imprint is now called Archive Editions.
- In 2025 East View partnered with Alam Al-Kotob to broaden our e-book title collections in Arabic. We now provide thousands of Arabic e-books, from both Alam Al-Kotob and Kotobarabia.

Whether you seek academic or popular books in e-book format, online access to current newspapers and press archives, or subscriptions to important journal titles from the Middle East, you can rely on East View. Our expanded Middle East offerings continue traditions started by East View over thirty years ago.

East View is committed to sourcing uncommon information from extraordinary places supported with exceptional service.

We look forward to serving you.
