The largest single database on Taiwanese history in the Chinese language

The result of 15 years of work by historians and scholars, The Encyclopedia of Taiwan covers a time span from the Tang Dynasty to the Japanese occupation period.

With 595 books divided into 309 categories and accounts for 48 million Chinese characters, the resource incorporates local histories, official documents of Ming, Qin Dynasties as well as Nan-Ming. Also included are poems and private collections, many of which are sole copies and out-of-print books. It covers a variety of dimensions of Taiwan, including history, geography, local customs, politics, economics, sociology, laws and culture.

Based on the Taiwan Literature Series edited by former Dean of the National Taiwan University Law School Chou Hsien-Wen, it is the most heavily referenced database of its kind.
