

AcademicImage Library

Discover research documents through images

Discover new research material using existing images. AcademicImage Library is a platform that provides scholars with one-stop access to academic images relating to Chinese history, geography, literature, art, philosophy, religion, culture and education. Users can start their research with an image, find relevant research interests and links to related documents. Offered via the China National Knowledge Infrastructure (CNKI) platform, AcademicImage Library comprises images from China Academic Journals (CAJ) and from China Reference Works Online (CRWO). Images are academically and accurately classified based on their features, literature keywords and caption keywords, and include links to the source literature.
