

Government Documents Knowledge Service Platform

Centralized discovery platform for announcements and policies from all levels of the Chinese government

Government Documents Knowledge Service Platform (GDSP) compiles materials which are publicly released on government websites. The platform includes publications at all levels of government: state council, ministries, and commissions, provincial governments and departments, municipal governments and departments, and district and county governments. At the ministry and state council level, these documents include national regulations, international agreements, and country-wide initiatives. At the local level, these documents include administrative announcements, public works descriptions, and requirements for local residents.
